

AUTOMATIC WASHER PREVIEWED

Residents of the Los Angeles area are receiving a sneak preview of the new, low-cost Maytag Highlander automatic washer, being pre-marketed in this trade area in advance of national introduction this fall, according to John Wyman, president of the Maytag West Coast Co.

The Highlander is an entirely new washer, engineered from top to bottom by a Maytag research team whose goal was to develop an efficient, high quality automatic washer to be marketed in a price bracket never before served by the Maytag automatic washer line.

In Redondo Beach, the new washer may be seen at Griffey Electric, 212 S. Pacific ave., according to Bob Hayes, owner.

"This new machine has been especially designed to bring famous Maytag quality to budget-conscious young Americans. It opens a vast new market," Hayes said.

Swirlaway draining action, sediment baffle, helical drive, toggle-switch water temperature selection, aerated spray rinse, efficient balance band and reversible motor.

A built-in suds return system is optional. Matching gas or electric Maytag AirFlow driers are available.

Although of completely new mechanical design, the Highlander retains basic Maytag features, such as Gyrafoam washing action, a lid shut-off switch, rapid action tub brake, rust-proof steel cabinet, porcelain enamel spin basket and outer tub, unbalance switch, adjustable leveling legs and completely flexible automatic control.

Featuring modern styling, with a raised back panel and copper-tone color accent, the Highlander also has some exclusives of its own, including

State to Act Against Shacks

Immediate action was promised this week to remedy shameful conditions on 182nd st., west of Crenshaw Blvd. following complaints by nearby homeowners regarding unsightly and unhealthy shacks.

This assurance was given this week by Tom Sibley, right-of-way agent for the California Division of Highways.

The matter involves State-owned homes which are being rented temporarily or standing vacant until they can be removed for the freeway that is scheduled to go through there.

Sibley said that the State has investigated the situation and found it every bit as bad as complaining homeowners have stated.

He said that his office would get the homes fixed up and put back in good condition; kick out tenants who have failed to take care of the property; rent the homes but raise the restrictions in order to get the right kind of tenants; and stake out the area to catch vandals.

"Parents of youngsters caught vandalizing the houses should know that they are liable up to $300," Sibley said, adding that the State would prosecute to the limit.

He said the freeway would probably go through in about two years. "This is my personal guess," he added.

Local Steel Plants Back In Operation

Steelworkers at the local plants of Columbia - General Steel and Bethlehem Pacific Steel are back at work again. Spokesmen for the two firms revealed this week.

Production at the Columbia plant is back to normal, the spokesman said, with the first heat of steel being tapped at 10:10 p.m. Sunday.

The start-up crew came in Friday night with everyone now back on the job.

At Bethlehem Steel about 80 per cent of the workers showed up on the first shift Monday. The remaining 20 per cent may have obtained new jobs during the period of the strike, a company spokesman said. Consequently, it will take about four weeks until the local plant is in full operation again.

Increased prices for products manufactured at the local plant of the United State Steel Corp. were announced Tuesday by the firm.

New prices per pound are: standard structural shapes, $5.70; merchant quality hot rolled bars, $5.775; special quality hot rolled bars, $6.125; concrete reinforcing bars, $5.775; tie plates, $6.175, and hot rolled strip, $5.425.

The firms said that the price increases partially result from the wage boosts recently granted to members of the United Steel Workers' Union.
